Public Invited to the Camp Williams Joint Land Use Study Implementation Project Community Open Houses

The public is cordially invited to attend public open houses to learn about the project's status, review draft work product, recommendations and actions already in process and to provide input on all of these to the project team. These meetings will take the form of casual "open house" events, with each participating community providing its own booth where residents, business owners and others can review information, ask questions, get answers and provide input. Camp Williams will also have an informational booth where participants will be able to learn about its mission, operations and important contributions to the region. The objective of the open house is to provide information and obtain public input. Two convenient locations have been picked and the open houses will be held on two different nights. Both open houses will be the same in terms of objective, content and City representation, so pick the one that's most convenient for you!

Your participation is essential and will help strengthen the already productive and mutually beneficial relationships that area communities share with Camp Williams.

Please stop by anytime between 6:00pm and 8:30pm.

Funded through a grant from the Department of Defense-Office of Economic Adjustment, and contributions by Eagle Mountain City, a JLUS Implementation project is a cooperative land use planning effort conducted as a joint venture between an active military installation, surrounding counties and cities, and other affected stakeholders. The overall goal is to protect the viability of current and future missions at Camp Williams while accommodating growth, sustaining the economic health of the region, and protecting public health and safety.

All interested parties are encouraged to attend one or both of the Open Houses to learn more and provide community input on the Camp Williams JLUS Implementation effort. For more information, please visit the project website at: www.campwilliamsjlus.com.
