Public Invited to the Camp Williams Joint Land Use Study Implementation Project Community Meetings

The public is cordially invited to attend public community meetings to learn about the project's status, review final draft recommendations, learn about actions already in process and to provide input on all of these to the project team. On behalf of the project's management team, the project consultant will present the project committee's final draft recommendations and solicit public input, as well as answer any questions the public may have. Two convenient locations have been picked and the community meetings will be held on two different nights. Both community meetings will be the same in terms of meeting format and content, so pick the one that's most convenient for you!

Your participation is essential and will help strengthen the already productive and mutually beneficial relationships that area communities share with Camp Williams.

The project's implementation area includes the southern portions of Herriman and Salt Lake County, as well as portions of Eagle Mountain, Saratoga Springs, Lehi and Utah County.

Funded through a grant from the Department of Defense-Office of Economic Adjustment, and contributions by Eagle Mountain City, a JLUS Implementation project is a cooperative land use planning effort conducted as a joint venture between an active military installation, surrounding counties and cities, and other affected stakeholders. The overall goal is to protect the viability of current and future missions at Camp Williams while accommodating growth, sustaining the economic health of the region, and protecting public health and safety.

All interested parties are encouraged to attend one or both of the community meetings to learn more and provide community input on the Camp Williams JLUS Implementation effort. For more information, please visit the project website at: www.campwilliamsjlus.com.
